

I Voted!

You, your family members, and your friends have different interests and hobbies. Some people like to read books, others like to solve math problems, play an instrument, practice a sport, or draw. Host an election and ask each person in your family to vote for an activity they would like to do the most - together. Everyone will make their choice and place their ballot in the ballot box. After votes have been cast (after people choose), count together the number of votes for each activity. Talk with your family about which activity received the most votes. Talk about which had the least number of votes. Did anything surprise you? Talk about the outcome and enjoy the activities in the order that received the most votes to the least.

I Voted!

On Election Day, in many communities, voters receive a sticker, a badge, or a button after they cast their ballot. This token both recognizes participation and encourages others to vote.

Color and cut out these "I Voted Today!" badges. Share them with members of your family after they cast their ballot. You can help celebrate and recognize their participation in the election.
